WAS BEST EVER.

Great Van Amburg Circus Pleased. Every Feature Splendid.

If ever comes back to town, and you have not already seen it, be sure to go. It is without doubt superior to any circus traveling the United States.

It is the cleanest, most refined and up-to-date circus in the world. There is an absence of grafting or grafters that is noticeable. The gentlemen in charge do not carry that old-time circus swag about them. They are all neatly dressed, polite and look after the individual comfort of their patrons, not giving their entire time and attention to gathering the shekels.

If the Van Amburg Circus ever returns to this city it will have to have two canvases as large as the one used yesterday to accommodate the crowd. At 8 o'clock every reserved seat was taken, and at 8:15 every seat of any kind was taken, the only available room being on the ground in front of the seats. The tent was packed almost to suffocation, and despite the fact that it was too warm to be comfortable, nobody left until the last race was finished.

The work of the acrobats alone was worth twice the price of admission.

The finest lot of trained horses in the United States, the daring bareback riders, the trapeze and bar performers and the funniest set of clowns ever carried with a circus were all interesting.

The Van Amburg Circus is growing larger and better every year. It will always be welcome in Atlanta.—Atlanta Constitution. Will exhibit at Emporium, August 10.

Piano for Sale.

A good second-hand piano for sale very cheap, $30. J. P. MCNARNEY.

Whose Son is He?

Rev. J. M. Robertson, delivered an able sermon last Sunday morning at Emmanuel Episcopal church. It was as follows:

"Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them a question saying, What think ye of the Christ? Whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in the spirit call Him Lord?"—St. Matt. 22: 42-3.

These words, particularly the question, "What think ye of the Christ? Whose son is he?" may fitly suggest to us the thought of our estimate of Christ as the Son of God, and the ground on which we rest our faith.

From all the Gospels, and particularly from the fourth, we receive a vivid impression of the running fight of criticism and controversy which the enemies of our Lord waged upon Him, especially when he was in Jerusalem. The whole issue turned upon his claim to be the Messiah, or the Christ. The hope in a Messiah who soon should come was deeply seated and universally prevalent among the Jews at the beginning of our era. In presenting Himself to the Jews as the Messiah, or Christ, our Lord was simply making use of that idea and term which would most fully convey to them the reality that He was. It was necessary to put the new wine of Christ's revelation of God into the old bottle of the Messianic concept.

The Pharisees thought of the Messiah as an early monarch, as a deliverer from foreign oppression and a conqueror of the Gentile nations. He was to raise again the splendors of David, and so to prove himself the son of David. But they laid equal stress upon his actual descent from David. Among the Pharisees the Messianic hope had come to be mixed up with a sort of legitimism as narrow and fanatical as that ever associated with the houses of Stuart or Bourbon. The Messiah must be a real descendant of David, able to prove his genealogy to the satisfaction of all. This legitimist demand was an essential part of the old wine which the Pharisees insisted should remain in the old bottle. Our Lord's own disciples were saturated with the same idea of legitimism, that is, that the Christ must be a real descendant of David according to the flesh; and, accordingly, we find elaborate attempts in two of the Gospels to trace the genealogy of our Lord to David; but our Lord Himself seems to have placed about as much value upon these well-meant efforts as did Napoleon upon the efforts of his imperial father-in-law to prove that the Bonapartes were of ancient royal descent. The new wine was so different from the old, the conception of Messiahship which our Lord had come to reveal was so different from the conception held by the Pharisees, that the question of physical descent from David appeared in the light of the former as of very secondary and trivial importance. The question which our Lord put to the Pharisees had one meaning and value for them and quite another meaning and value for Him.

To them the all important answer was the one which they gave, viz, "the Son of David." When our Lord turned their words back upon them and asked again, "How then doth David in the Spirit call Him Lord?" He was in effect saying to them, Your answer does not go to the heart of the question; you are dealing with trivialities and accidents. I am not asking about the genealogy of the Messiah; I am asking the vastly more important question as to what the Messiah is in His inmost nature and character. That is what I mean when I ask, What think ye of the Messiah? Whose son is he? I am not asking about ancestors, but about character and spirit, about duty and mission. Since David in the Spirit called him Lord, it is simply irrelevant to lay emphasis upon the Messiah's descent from David. We must look higher than David if we are to understand the personality and nature of the Messiah—the Christ. He may be a son of David, but if He is only that, He is not the Christ.

To the Pharisees sonship suggested only the idea of a material genealogy. Our Lord used it in an ethical sense. Our Lord never referred to His ancestry. He never called Himself the Son of David. He never said, I am what I am because of such and such descent. He did call Himself the Son of Man and the Son of God, but these terms, it is evident, express not origin or descent, but essential nature, particularly in the ethical and spiritual sphere.

Our Lord, when he asked the Pharisees, What think ye of the Christ? was not referring explicitly to Himself or to His own claim. The question was quite general in character, referring only to the Messiah in general, whoever he might be. But Jesus might have challenged attention directly to Himself, as He indeed did on many occasions. Our text in the King James version is often used to challenge thought directly to our Lord Himself. "What think ye of Christ?" Very appropriately may these words be so used, for such a challenge does confront every man who comes into the world. There stands Jesus Christ, the central figure, the dominating personality in the world's history, making claims upon the allegiance of men such as none other can make. Whether one will or no he is confronted with the challenge, What think ye of Christ? What is his value for you? What does His nature mean for you? In other words, whose son do you say He is?

We all believe and gladly confess that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. But let us not fall into the error of the Pharisees of old, who saw in the question as to whose son Jesus was, nothing more than a question of genealogy and physical heredity and origin. The question, primarily, is not, how do we think Christ was born? but, what nature do we behold in Him? We must put an ethical emphasis upon the question, Whose Son is He? not a genealogical emphasis. Two of the evangelists do indeed tell us something about the mystery of our Lord's birth, and these accounts in their essential features are not likely to be set aside as the result of the most searching historical scrutiny or of the most rigid scientific criticism. But after all is said it will remain true that our belief in the divinity of Jesus, our faith in the Incarnation, does not rest upon the story of His extraordinary birth, any more than does our belief that He was the Christ of God rest upon the proof of His descent from David.

Upon what ground then, do we rest our judgment that Jesus was divine, that He was the Son of God? It rests upon our direct perception and appreciation of His wonderful, His unique personality, of His matchless character of love and goodness, and of His supreme power and influence over the lives of men. It was upon this ground and this alone, that our Lord Himself based His claim upon the spiritual allegiance of men. He had nothing to say about His genealogy or of the circumstances of His birth; but He did say, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father."

We smile at the simplicity of St. Philip, who said, Show us the Father: yet have we not been just as slow as he to see that in knowing the concrete historic Christ we are in reality knowing the Eternal Father? Somehow we think of divinity as something wholly different and separate from humanity. It is a puzzle to us to understand how Jesus Christ could be both God and man—very God and very man. We have invented theories to solve the problem. Sometimes we have emphasized His divinity almost to the exclusion of His humanity; and sometimes we have emphasized His humanity to the exclusion of His divinity. Perhaps the most common way of trying to harmonize the two elements has been to alternate between the two, to see in Christ alternately one who is human and divine. In the Christ who sat weary beside the well of Samaria we see the human Christ; in the Christ who walked upon the water and who fed the multitude in the wilderness we see the Christ who was divine. In the Christ who quivered with agony in the Garden of Gethsemane and who endured the pain of crucifixion we see the human Christ, while in the Christ of the rending tomb and the enveloping cloud we see Christ the divine.

But is Christ to be thus divided? Are we still to cling to that habit of thought which separates so sharply between the divine and the human, that it cannot see the human in the divine, nor recognize the divine in the human? Our Lord Himself was conscious of no severance in his personality. Had He been conscious of such a division in Himself between the divine and the human, He would surely have qualified His answer to St. Philip by saying, "He that hath seen the divine part of me hath seen the Father."

Are we still to cling to that habit of thought which associates the idea of divinity only with the thought of might, majesty, dominion and power? Are we still to think that Christ was somehow less of God, less endowed with divinity, when He humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross? Is the cross to be to us, as it was to the Jews, a stumbling-block? And yet how much easier it is for us in our habit of thought to associate divinity with a throne than with a cross. And because there was so little of the throne in His earthly ministry, we feel that we must needs turn to what is secondary and accidental and external altogether to His real life, in order to find witness to His divinity.

So long as divinity suggests to us only majesty, dominion and power, we shall miss the central evidence of the divinity of Christ and we shall miss the closest link which binds us to God, and gives us the hope of becoming in any real sense the sons of God. Our faith in the divinity of Christ does not rest finally upon any outward proof, but solely upon our perception and appreciation of His wonderful personality and character. The highest, nay the only real, meaning of the divine is ethical and spiritual. Apart from such a meaning we may know something of an infinite power, or of an infinite intelligence, or of a supreme monarch in the heavens, but we know absolutely nothing of the divine. To seek to explain the divine in any other terms than those which find our ethical and spiritual sense, is like seeking to convey an impression of a sunset in terms of optics and meteorology. If to be divine means to be possessed of all power and knowledge and visible majesty, then we cannot call Jesus of Nazareth divine. It is because the divine has no necessary relation to power or knowledge or kingly state, but solely to the highest perfection of character, that we hesitate not to hail the Man of Galilee as in the highest and truest sense divine. Instead of its being necessary that He should be authenticated to us by external voice or sign, it is He who manifests, and therefore authenticates, the Father to us. "We know that what Jesus says of God is true also of Himself, and then we know it to be true of God." Our highest ideas of all that is most truly and essentially divine are based upon our knowledge and understanding of the spiritual character of the Christ of the Gospels. The whole spiritual meaning of our idea of God is based upon our knowledge of Christ. If there is a purity more pure than His, a holiness more holy, a faith profounder, a hope higher and surer, a love more tender and deep, a purpose more far-reaching and all-embracing, we know not where they may be found. We know of nothing in all the universe more divine than Christ. It is because we know of nothing which so exactly our deepest spiritual homage, nothing which so satisfies the most rigid ethical demands, that we shrink not from giving to Him the name that is above every name. Not power, not knowledge, but love, is of the essence of God's nature. Only our Saviour's love itself can witness to us in the truest sense that He is divine. And yet how slow we are to understand that our faith that Christ is the Son of God rests upon our knowledge of His character, of His spirit of love and service. Browning, in his poem "An Epistle," describes the shock, and also fascination, which this truth had for a pagan to whose mind it came as a startling revelation. May that truth be as vivid to us as to him.

"The very God! think Abib; dost thou think? So the All-Great were the all-Loving too— So through the thunder comes a human voice, Saying: O heart I made, a heart beats here! Face my hands fashioned, see it in myself! Thou hast no power nor mayest conceive of mine; But love I gave thee, with myself to love. And thou must love me who have died for thee."

Eye Specialist.
Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., Aug. 10th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

Suicide in Tennessee.
Robert Devling, who just returned from Tenn., reports the suicide of Thos. Richards, at camp 5, Little River, Tenn. Richards was bookkeeper for John Shey (well known in Potter county) and used to reside in Cameron county. No reason assigned for the deed.

The Beautiful Pony Goes.
The beautiful pony Mr. W. W. Weiman has been exhibiting in Emporium for some time, will be given to the holder of the lucky number, on Saturday, Aug. 17th. A few tickets remain unsold.

Ice Cream and Lunch.
The Ladies Aid Society of M. E. Church will serve ice cream and lunch on circus day in a tent, to be erected at corner of Broad and Fourth streets. The ladies assumed the debt upon their personage and take this method of paying same. Give them a call.

Mr. Devling Improving.
Mr. W. E. Devling, who is confined in Williamsport Hospital, we are glad to learn from his good wife who visited him on Monday, "that he is improving. He will be able to sit up in a few days and is a great deal better than we expected to find him." This will be pleasant news to W. E.'s many Cameron county friends.

Visiting at Jamestown.
Judge Geo. J. LaBar and wife, accompanied by their four grand-children, left on Tuesday for Jamestown Exposition and other southern points of interest. The Judge intends to look up some of the battlefields to see if any of the rail fences remain that he jumped his charger over when the Reds made it too hot for his comfort.

Good Path Master.
Jos. Streich was on July 6th appointed one of the Path Masters for Shippen township, having charge of the roads from Emporium to the McKean county line, also the Salt Run, Sizer Run and Plank Road Hollow roads. Mr. Streich says he will put the roads in good condition as rapidly as possible with the funds at his command. The PRESS believes he will do as he agrees.

$5.00 Reward.
I will pay five dollars reward for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who poured acid or oil over my pet dog, badly burning the same.
JOSEPH LECHNER.

UNLOADING WHISKEY ON EMPORIUM.

Not content with "rubbing it in" on Emporium on account of the great number of fatalities that has befallen Emporium during the past year, the Port Allegany liquor dealers, or at least one dealer last Friday sold one gallon of whiskey to an Emporium woman, who had been arrested for drunkenness, when any person could tell that she was addicted to drink. The courts of McKean county should investigate this case of violation and promptly punish the violator. The woman referred to came home gloriously drunk and made an assault upon her family and again landed in jail. The woman referred to, when out of liquor, is an industrious, hard working citizen and has accumulated considerable property. The great sorrow under which the family is resting warrants our withholding the name.

Emporium we admit is, and has been for sometime, practically drunk; pigs ears and flagrant violations of the liquor laws, assaults, murders, robberies, and all kinds of meanness and devilry going unpunished. The people of Emporium are ready for revolt and if the licenses are wiped out by the court, none will be to blame but the violators. Hotel men, who have large sums of money invested, in order to protect their own interests should promptly organize for self protection.

State Road Extensions.

The State Highway Department have had a crew of surveyors in this county for several days surveying contemplated state road work. The surveyors were named: J. T. Gephart, chief, and assistants, Robt. G. Horneck, Walter T. Young, Harold Block, Howard Hershey, M. Glenn Brubaker and U. J. Eckman. Two pieces of road have been surveyed in this county, 4,300 feet from E. & E. R. R., depot at Sinnamahoning to the iron bridge on First Fork and 6,300 feet of an extension to the West Creek road built last year. This will extend the West Creek road up to the Emporium Powder Company road and make a pleasant drive or even walk.

Beautiful Lawns.

Our townspeople have just reason to be proud of their beautiful and well kept lawns, and a trip around town will repay any one. Start in some pleasant evening and walk around town and you will be surprised. Of course Geo. Barker, who has charge of the Court House lawns takes the prize, if one was awarded. No finer lawns can be found in the state than those to be seen in Emporium—the court house, Fred Julian, J. Pitt Felt, Mrs. Bryan, Jos. Kaye and Judge Green's being the most extensive.

Arrested and Jailed.

Constable H. B. Muthersbaugh of Driftwood brought one Wm. Coher, aged 36, to Fort Slope last Monday, charged with the awful crime of fornication and bastardy, the victim being a young girl between fourteen and fifteen years of age. The man being married and the girl a minor, the prisoner will no doubt get the full penalty of the law. If Constable Muthersbaugh don't let up on arresting, the county will have to erect a larger jail.

Attending Family Reunion.
Bank Teller Charles E. Crandall and wife, who have been visiting relatives in New York, were called home on Monday, owing to the serious illness of their daughter Elsie, who is now better. Mr. Crandall left yesterday for Nelson, N. Y., to attend a family reunion of relatives. About 150 cousins will be present from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan. What a jolly good time Charles will have.

The Great Van Amburg Shows.

The Atlanta News says:
"The general consensus of opinion of the five or six thousand Atlanta people who attended the afternoon and night performances given by the Van Amburg shows is that not a cleaner, cleverer circus ever raised its canvas in Atlanta, and every person attending the afternoon or evening performance will be a walking, talking advertisement for the Van Amburg Shows should the circus come this way again."

"All the horses, all the animals of the menagerie, looked trim, well fed and cared for, the wagons, the cages, seemed more than mere good leaf and tinsel decorations. From the ticket sellers and takers to the ushers and even the canvas men the circus attaches appeared neat and courteous. But, best of all there wasn't a grafter with the show. For each dime or dollar spent by the amusement seekers, either in or about the show, an equivalent to the full was given of entertainment."

"There have been large shows in Atlanta in past years, circuses that spread larger tents, needed more care for transporting paraphernalia and exhibits, shows that made more pretense and blew louder blasts of publicity, but never one that gave patrons more for their money or made a better impression of cleanliness and decency. To praise in detail all that should be praised would be to consume columns of space, so it can only be said that every Van Amburg attraction was better than represented, every ring artist first-class, every detail of the circus wholly satisfying. May the Van Amburg Shows come again next year and every year." Will exhibit at Emporium, Aug. 10.

Gets Something at Port Allegany.

A Hungarian woman who claims Emporium as her home, was in the city Tuesday and Wednesday begging. It is said that she walked over from the powder town. It is further said that she is the wife of one of the Hunks who was burned to death while drunk at Emporium a couple of weeks ago. There is an ordinance against begging on the streets of Port Allegany.—Reporter.

Brother Layman of the Reporter has been giving Emporium some hard rapscallies in regard to the liquor question. We are aware that Emporium has numerous license places, and may not be as strict as the law requires them to be, but we would like to know what difference it makes whether a person buys their whiskey at home or goes to Port Allegany to make their purchase. The only way we can account for it is, as the old saying goes, they are looking for the "rottenest stuff" on the market. We will say in reference to the above notice that the woman referred to is being properly cared for and has not been out of town since her unfortunate trouble. The editor of the Reporter says fewer licensed places and the more strict the law will be carried out, and then they won't be so hungry for the money. Now, a case came under our observation the past week, in which a party was refused drink at this place and at once took the train for Port Allegany and returned with four quarts of whiskey, the result of which the party was so crazed that she is now in jail. We don't know what brand they sell there, but it must be rank stuff.

New Proprietor in Charge.

Mr. Wm. Schutte, of Pittsburg, who recently purchased the furniture and leased New Warner arrived in Emporium last night and took possession to-day. Mr. Schutte is a practical hotel man, having conducted the same kind of business in Pittsburg and East Pittsburg for nine years. He is a gentleman in the prime of life, quiet and unassuming and we bespeak for him the same large trade accorded the New Warner under the retiring proprietor and his estimable wife, who have made many friends in Emporium. We are glad they will remain here.

An Infernal Outrage.

The scoundrel who poured acid or some burning chemical upon Jos. Lechner's pug dog, last Monday, disfiguring it for life, should be discovered and the full penalty of the law inflicted. A fiend who would do such an act would burn your house. In addition to the $5.00 reward offered by Mr. Lechner, many other citizens will each give $5.00 to the party furnishing evidence that will convict. Here is a chance to make good money.

A Hearing Ear.

A busy doctor who had engaged a young assistant was asked if he really intended to entrust him with his cases. "Oh, no," he replied. "He will listen to the patients, look sympathetic, and report to me in the fewest possible words. A sick woman has to talk just so much, and I haven't time to listen." The minister, the lawyer and the teacher might follow the doctor's example, and employ a listening "double" to their great relief, remarks the Youth's Companion. In fact, it may usually be found that the most helpful person in the town is the one who can listen best to the complaints and perplexities of the women-folk. Self-expression is as necessary for the welfare of most women as food and drink. The very talkative woman has a silent husband—not simply because she does not give him time to speak, but because she was attracted to him in the first place by his genius for listening. However, there may be something more than mere self-indulgence in the habit of "talking things out" with some appreciative listener. The wisest of women know that they get light on their own perplexities by the act of putting them into words. A mother is often her own best adviser as to the training of her child, when she has once formulated his needs. The remedy for the fault appears when the fault is fairly described. So the recourse to the listening ear is not to be entirely decried. It is only when continual talk breaks down the proper barriers of reserve that the talking woman becomes a nuisance to her friends and a menace to her family. It is pitiful to see the condition of silent misery to which a family is reduced when one woman in it is a chronic chatter. "What were your father's last words?" asked a sympathetic neighbor of a little boy just bereaved. "He didn't have any," gravely replied the child. "Mother was with him all the time!"

Small boys will no doubt continue to eat green fruit with no discrimination as to kind or quantity or manner of consumption. For the benefit of less adventuresome adults, the department of agriculture informs us that adequate mastication will prevent disastrous results from eating unripe fruit, and that the danger is less than is commonly supposed, especially from gooseberries, plums, apples and pears. This is in accord with the assertion of the poet that it was a little green peach that made the trouble. On ripe consideration, the Youth's Companion feels constrained to advise everybody of whatever age to eschew all green fruit—eschew it 32 times.

Great Britain's employees' compensation act has gone into effect, and there is some doubt as to whether its effects will be good or bad. Broadly it provides that an employee incapacitated by accident shall receive 50 per cent. of his usual wages while incapacitated, but not to exceed five dollars per week. For death the compensation is $750 to $1,500. It is urged by some that it will prevent the employment of persons whose age or partial infirmity make especially liable to accident, but that remains to be seen. Many employers are taking out insurance, which companies are issuing against loss under the law.

"Psychic epilepsy" has succeeded brain storm as a medical term. A New York physician has just been cleared of the charge of brutally assaulting a man and woman on the street on the plea that he had been subject to attacks of psychic epilepsy from childhood, and that on recovery he had no knowledge of what had occurred. Just how the ailment differs from ordinary epilepsy is not made clear, but it will undoubtedly prove to be a convenient malady in criminal procedure.

G. A. Kessler, the New Yorker who has bought Riverside, Borne End, on the Thames, where the Harvard crew trained last fall, will spend $150,000 in renovating it. For one thing he will put in 3,000 electric lights in the house and grounds. The mansion will be known hereafter as New York Lodge.

GRATEFUL KAISER

HOW GERMANY'S RULER LOVES THE UNITED STATES.

Keenly Appreciative of the Fact That Our Government Is Now Issuing to German Exporters Cut Rates of Admission to the American Market.

Just now the American ambassador at Berlin is the recipient of marked favor and consideration at the hands of the German emperor. Nearly a column of cable matter in the New York Times of June 26 is devoted to a recital of the many courtesies and attentions which the kaiser is conspicuously bestowing upon our representative at the Berlin court. Mr. Chamagne Tower is knee deep in clover, what with preferred places at the imperial elbow at lunches, dinners and other festive occasions.

It would seem that Wilhelm I. cannot do too much to show how much he loves America. Well, he cannot do too much. He ought to love us a whole lot. Certainly we have been tremendously good to Germany of late.

Commencing with July 1, our government has begun the issue of German exporters of cut-rate tickets of admission to the American market.

Only a few weeks ago our ambassador to Germany, home on leave, constituted himself ambassador from Germany and in a dinner speech told the people of this country how kind the Germans were in consenting to forego their proposed rank discrimination against our products and in granting us the full, normal protective tariff rate instead of a tariff marked up twice or three times above the normal.

It would seem to have been an "inspired" speech, for not long after came the conclusion of that astounding tariff agreement whereunder the German exporters are permitted to decide what duties they shall pay upon entering their goods at United States custom houses.

We should think the emperor would be nice to our ambassador. He ought to be.

It is not surprising to learn that Wilhelm regards Mr. Roosevelt as the greatest of all American presidents. How could he think otherwise? No American president has ever done anything like so much for Germany. Somebody has said that republics are ungrateful.

Perhaps they are. But nobody who reads the news from Berlin can say that monarchies are ungrateful. If ever a monarch fairly slopped over with gratitude, and not without abundant cause, that monarch is the German kaiser at the present time.

That Useful Tariff Cudgel.

Speaking of the discovery by the state department of the forgotten law of 1890, authorizing the prohibition of imports from any country which unjustly discriminates against the products of the United States, the New York Evening Post remarks:

"A useful tariff cudgel is what the experts term it. So it is useful, in the sense that a club in the hands of a policeman or the puller-in of a Bowery clothing store might be. As between gentlemen, weapons of this kind are not in fashion, and though nations may not always behave like gentlemen, in the long run the armed bully is neither popular nor always successful in obtaining what he wants."

If the writer of this curious comment was about to be held up in a dark alley he would be mighty glad to remember that he had with him a useful cudgel, and he would not hesitate to use it. He would not regard it as an affair "between gentlemen." Well, the United States has been held up. Unfortunately our gifted state department and our acquiescent treasury department forgot all about the useful cudgel of 1890, and allowed the Teutonic sandbagger to go through them without resistance on their part. Another sandbagger, this one on the western bank of the Rhine, threatens another hold-up. He, too, flourishes threateningly the maximum tariff sandbag. Will he, too, be allowed to get away with the hold-up? Or will the useful cudgel of 1890 be brought into action?

Characteristic.

In his recent speech before the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce Gov. Cummins said:

"I am for tariff revision and for tariff reduction as a measure of justice to the buyers of protected commodities. It seems to me that we have gone mad in our zeal for the seller and have abandoned the buyer to the tender mercies of monopoly, combination and greed."

Consideration for the consumer and justice for the buyer is orthodox free trade doctrine. The trouble with free traders is that they fail to remember that in our country 99 per cent. of the consumers are also producers and 99 per cent. of the buyers are also sellers. With labor scarce, wages high, savings banks deposits increasing at a tremendous rate, and the per capita wealth of the country mounting steadily upward year by year, it seems nonsensical to be spouting about the abandonment of the buyer to the tender mercies of monopoly, combination and greed; that is, it seems nonsensical for the Republican governor of a great Republican state to be talking that way in such a hive of industry and production as Pittsburgh. Singular to relate, the man who talks this free trade stuff is by some people still recognized as a Republican and a protectionist!

COULD NOT FACE THE FACTS.

Agitators for Tariff Revision Are Heavily Handicapped.

The country has seemingly so much to do and is so prosperous that the tariff question has been lost sight of. In some of the western states and in Massachusetts political agitators have worked during the past six years to stir the people to a frenzied demand for the lowering of import duties.

Their work appeared to be prompted by political ambitions, but tariff ripping would not stand the debate. Hence the men who made such a howl about the tariff for a time have turned their attention to other things. They could not face the facts of a commerce growing at home and abroad. No cause can be maintained before the American people for any considerable time unless it is a just cause.

Hence the death of the anti-tariff agitation. In Iowa, where the so-called "Iowa idea" was born, there is nobody at the present time advocating the lowering of duties; they are even silent on the reciprocity question. Reciprocity is a species of false pretense. In practice it means robbing and betraying one line of industry for the benefit of another. Reciprocity in one locality means a trade for the benefit of that particular locality, regardless of whose industry is destroyed. For a time reciprocity was popular, but when the reciprocity of Massachusetts, which sought to trade off the farmer, met the reciprocity of Iowa, which sought to trade off the manufacturer, there was surprise on both sides. And both sides concluded they had better quit.

The tariff for the present is a dead issue. The national Republican convention next year will declare unequivocally for protection without apology; will also declare for reciprocity in non-competitive articles only.—Des Moines Capital.

HOW UNCLE SAM WAS TIED UP.

President Fallieres—Tell me, my dear friend, how you managed it.

Kaiser Wilhelm—It was very easy; much easier than I had dared to believe. I told him that German exporters were scrupulously honest in the matter of valuations, and also intensely philanthropic in their regard for American interests, and that it was the study of their lives how best to promote the labor and industry of his country. He swallowed it all.—[Exit president and emperor laughing hilariously.]

Going It Blind.

With impressive unanimity the free-trade newspapers are directing attention to the tariff revision resolution adopted by the National Association of Manufacturers, as showing that the "mischiefous effects" of the Dingley tariff upon their industries are beginning to become apparent to the manufacturers of the United States. We wonder!

Delegates to large conventions seldom do much of their own thinking. The thinking is done for them by somebody else. Now, is it really a fact that more than one out of ten of the rank and file knew what they were voting on when they adopted a committee report calling for tariff revision at the earliest practicable moment, and for filling up the gaps, meanwhile by negotiating for reciprocity in competing products? Probably not so many as one out of ten bothered their heads about the matter.

A still smaller proportion—practically none, excepting the half-baked free traders on the committee which reported the resolution—had the faintest conception of what would be involved in tariff revision downward, coupled with still further tariff concessions in reciprocity treaties.

We think the anti-protective newspapers are mistaken in supposing that American manufacturers are ready to toss protection overboard. The mistake is a natural one, to be sure, in view of that absurd tariff revision resolution, but it is a mistake, nevertheless.

Cost Reduced by Protection.

The tariff on plate glass has at least not prevented the reduction in price of that article from $2.50 per square foot in 1876 to 30 and 35 cents per square foot at the present time. But the tariff on plate glass has permitted the development of a very valuable American industry, and the existence of this industry has had more to do with lowering the cost of all plate glass to American consumers than any other factor in connection with that reduction. Principally owing to the difference in wages paid, the cost of producing plate glass in this country is very much greater than in France or Germany, or elsewhere in Europe. These facts are respectfully referred to those persons in the Fifth congressional district of this state who for local reasons are asking for a revision of the tariff in behalf of plate glass. The protective tariff has been a good friend to the American consumer of plate glass.—Houghton Gazette.

GIVEN A JAIL SENTENCE.

MAN REFUSED TO CALL A DOCTOR FOR HIS DAUGHTER, WHO WAS SICK.

New York Court Says a Father's Excuse that He Had No Faith in Physicians Is Not Valid.

New York.—Clarence W. Byrne, who was recently tried and convicted on charges growing out of his failure to employ medical assistance for his 6-year-old daughter, who died of pneumonia, was on Friday sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment by the court of general sessions. Byrne, who is a salesman, was arrested on a charge of violating a section of the penal code which provides that "a person who wilfully omits, without lawful excuse, to perform a duty by law imposed upon him to furnish food, clothing, shelter or medical attendance to a minor, is guilty of a misdemeanor." The complainant was Coroner Acritelli. The decision was given by Justice Kean and the whole court was unanimous for conviction and sentence.

The defendant's excuse for not calling a medical practitioner during his daughter's illness was "want of faith in doctors" and reliance upon the efficacy of the religious faith to which he belongs. The court held the sole question before it to be whether the omission to furnish medical attendance under the circumstances constituted a "lawful excuse."

THREE KILLED AT A CROSSING.

A Car on an Electric Railway Near Jackson, Mich., Strikes an Automobile.

Jackson, Mich.—A westbound car on the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago electric railroad struck an automobile containing five Jackson residents at Sutton's Crossing, about three miles east of here, last evening. Mrs. Levi Palmer, Mrs. Emily Pulliver and Bernice Oliver were killed. The two last named instantly. Adelbert Oliver, a prominent business man of this city, who was driving the car, was probably fatally injured, while Mrs. R. A. Oliver, the fifth passenger, escaped with less serious injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and Mrs. Palmer were taken aboard the electric car and brought to this city, but Mrs. Palmer died before they reached the hospital.

Two parallel electric railroad tracks, the unused Boland line and the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago, cross the country road at the point where the accident occurred. A house and some trees hid the approaching car. From the fact that the brakes on the touring car were not set, it is believed Mr. Oliver, who was driving, did not see the car. Bernice Oliver, one of the killed was Mr. Oliver's daughter. Mrs. Pulliver was Mrs. Oliver's mother and Mrs. Palmer was their guest.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

Improvement in Crop Prospects Brings Out Liberal Orders for Fall Trade.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Trade reports from the leading cities are singularly uniform in making favorable comparisons with the corresponding week in any previous year. At most western and southern points the improvement in crop prospects has brought out liberal fall orders, and there is evidently more confidence in the future than at any time since it was found that many of the principal farm products had made a bad start. Jobbing houses are preparing for winter trade on a scale seldom equalled, the consumption of seasonable goods promising to deplete stocks most satisfactorily.

Manufacturers still receive orders in abundance, few clothing cancellations appear and it is the exception when plants have smaller contracts than a year ago. More detailed reports for the first half of 1907 add to the earlier testimony that all records for six months were far surpassed.

CAME WITH MURDEROUS INTENT.

New York "Chinks" Invade Boston's Chinatown and Kill Three Men and Wound Seven Others.

Boston, Mass.—Burning with hatred for their deadly enemies belonging to the rival On Leong Tong society, a band of New York Chinamen numbering a dozen or more, and said to be members of the notorious Hop Sing Tong organization, entered a narrow alley in Chinatown last night and, drawing revolvers, opened fire upon half a hundred Chinamen, killing three and injuring seven. At the first volley the Chinamen rushed for their quarters.

The Hop Sing Tong men chased their victims into their own doorways and shot them down as they rushed upstairs or into side rooms. Then, casting away their guns, the visitors ran from the Chinese quarter, most of them escaping the police.

The shooting occurred in the center of Chinatown, where about 50 children were at play. Fully 50 shots were exchanged.

WIDENING THE FIELD

MAKING GREATER OPPORTUNITY FOR SONS OF FARMERS.

BUILDING UP THE HOME TOWN

Some Causes for Complaint Which Can Be Obliterated by the United Efforts of the People.

How often do we hear it said that the young man has not the opportunity that the young man of a score of years ago had. How great is the complaint of trusts and combinations which control industries to the detriment of the smaller ones in business, and how often is reference made to business concentration in the large cities at the cost of the smaller towns.

Innovations in business methods have been many. It may be said that this is an era of economical methods; that evolution is going on continually broadening the field for individual effort and making possible the operation of mammoth enterprises. There can be no doubt as to the detrimental effects upon small towns of this business concentration in the larger cities. Pessimists deplore the lack of opportunity for the young men of to-day. At the same time the large corporations put forth the cry that there is a scarcity of the right kind of material for important places of trust. However this may be, there is one thing evident, and that is, small towns being kept from advancing narrows the field for the young men who would otherwise enjoy an opportunity to engage in business.

Traveling to the large city for employment, the youth, perhaps, seeks a clerkship at moderate wages. There are thousands of others that he must compete with in the race for success. His field is narrowed. It is not often that he has fair competition, and favoritism he finds is one of the obstructions in his way. One of the cures for this condition is to devise means of enlarging the scope and importance of the so-called country towns.

There is no economical reason why the large city should have the business that rightfully belongs to the small town. There is no saving in buying goods at a distant point even though a small percentage may be saved directly. Whenever a resident of a community sends his money to some other community for the necessities that he requires, he robs his own home town of a certain amount of business. Employment is given to the people of the large city instead of the people of the local community.

It has been estimated that more than 50 per cent. of the trade goes from some communities to larger cities. If this trade were given to the home town, it would immediately double its business importance and give a corresponding increase in employment for the people. This means that the population of the town would be increased and the opportunity for engaging in business would be greater. Not only this, but it is an established principle that values of farm lands to a great extent are dependent upon the activity of the town near which the farms may be located. Thus it is plain that if the sons of farmers would have greater opportunities open to them for engaging in business, it can be increased by closely adhering to the home trade and home protection principle, which widens the local field for individual effort in a business way.

HELPS FOR TOWN BUILDERS.

Strangers to a town form their opinions as to its people by the appearance of the business places and the residences. In a town where the buildings are dingy and dirty, and the show windows of the stores are carelessly arranged, it is evidence that there is a lack of enterprise. It pays the business men of a town to be careful as to the exterior appearances of their places of business.

Small towns usually contain but few expensive residences. It matters little how inexpensively built residences are if the buildings are kept well painted and the yards neat and clean. This is evidence of the good taste of the people.

In many towns in country districts there are hitching posts placed here and there before the stores. It is generally the case that where the hitching post is found, unless the street is well paved, there is a mud hole. Every town that is incorporated should have regulations as to the placing of hitching posts indiscriminately in the streets. There should be set aside some side street that is convenient to the business portion of the town, where the farmers and others can hitch their teams instead of in front of the stores.

Good sidewalks give the strangers to a town a favorable impression of the place, and also they are an advantage in many ways and may prove a matter of economy through the prevention of accidents that might give cause for damage against the town corporation.

Nearly every small town has its public park. It is often noticed that these parks are little cared for. They are public pastures and serve no good purpose as places where the people of the town can meet evenings for social intercourse. People of towns should take pride in keeping the public parks in good condition. They can be made beauty spots with but little effort and expense.

OPPRESSION IN FOREIGN LANDS.

Laborers Reduced to Slavery Through Systems of Land Holding.

Americans should be thankful for the liberty that their form of government allows. It is only necessary to study into conditions as they obtain in many of the European countries, to learn how enslaved are the common classes of the people of those countries. The holding of vast estates by the nobility has reduced the peasant classes to a condition of serfdom.

In these countries it is also noticeable that the artisans, and the workers in the mills, receive wages that are barely sufficient to buy them food and clothing. In many of the continental countries of Europe the farm laborer receives as compensation from $1 to $1.50 a week. In Silesia, where there are large cotton factories, expert weavers receive from $2.28 to $3 per week, and women employed at like work earn less than $2 per week. Even in Old England, where labor is paid the best of any European country, in the cotton factories the scale for labor runs from $4.86 to $10.20 a week. Where wages are so low it is impossible for the people to save money, and it is necessary that they live upon the plainest and cheapest food in order to make ends meet.

In comparison with these countries how grand are the opportunities for the laborer in the United States! In America there are homes for all who would build them. In no part of the earth is there such reward for individual effort. It is said by some that there is a tendency even in this free country toward oligarchy. That the tendency towards the concentration of financial power and business in the densely populated districts is a menace that is too lightly estimated. The preventive remedy for this evil lies in the hands of the masses. There is great need of the people in general studying more deeply into economic subjects. The simple principles upon which business rests appear to be little understood by the average citizens. The remedy for the prevention of the building up of one section of the United States at the cost of another section is readily at hand, and each and every citizen can do his part in administering this remedy.

For many years great insurance companies have maintained their headquarters in large eastern cities. Millions upon millions of dollars annually were contributed to them by the people in all parts of the United States. The vast funds built up for the protection of policyholders had to seek profitable investment. The great capitalists of finance evolved means for the employment of this capital. A dozen small industries independently conducted would be combined into one company, capitalized far up in the millions and the money contributed to the funds maintained by the insurance companies utilized in carrying out the plans of the great combinations. Thus it can be seen how trusts have been built up and the money of the people used for this purpose, and too often to oppress the very classes that contributed the funds which made it possible for bringing into existence these combinations.

It can be understood how essential it is that industries of this kind be established in the different states, and how the money contributed by the people of a state to a company in some other state works directly against the contributors. What holds good in the insurance business applies equally to other industries. By keeping the earnings of a people in the community where these earnings are produced, is to the best interests of the people. If it is necessary that they be sent from the community, as far as possible keep the earnings within the limits of the state, for what assists a state to greatness makes lighter the burden of taxation upon all the people within it and materially helps every community within the state.

The student can plainly understand how the concentration of business and of money can be prevented by a simple rule which involves the patronage of local institutions and the retaining in each community as far as possible all the wealth produced within that community. If this principle be closely adhered to it will be impossible for any acquirement of such vast power as will oppress the American people as the common classes of many of the European countries are oppressed.

Need a Good Bank.

A good bank is a valuable asset for a small town. During these days of prosperity people of almost every community have a surplus amount of money to deposit in the bank, or to invest in a way that will bring a fair margin of interest. Lately a system has grown up of doing a banking business by mail. Alleged savings banks and investment companies in large cities advertise widely offering six to seven per cent. interest on deposits. Many who have little knowledge of financial affairs make deposits in these banks. The Lincoln bank at Oak Park, Ill., was one of these institutions that made great offers to the people of agricultural districts in order to secure deposits. More than $1,000,000 were deposited by farmers and others in this concern. Within a year it was declared unsound by the United States authorities, the promoter of it placed under arrest and charged with fraud. The poor deluded depositors are not likely to receive five per cent. of their deposits. Remember that when you send your money from your local community it ceases to be any factor in developing home resources or in adding to the wealth of the place. It is better always to patronize home banks than banks far away.

HOT SESSION

Of Republican Convention
at Tulsa, I. T.

WILD EXCITEMENT

Was Created by an Orator's Effort to Stampede the Convention,
but He Was Unsuccessful.

Tulsa, I. T.—Gov. Frank Frantz was Thursday night nominated by acclamation for governor of the proposed state of Oklahoma by the republican state convention.

During the afternoon session of the convention a clash that was followed by a wild demonstration came when J. S. McGowan, of Snyder, Okla., in a speech argued against the naming of a ticket and for the rejection of the constitution. He captured the convention with his eloquence and finally declared that the party could not afford to name a ticket under the new constitution.

The delegates were swept off their feet for a moment, but the friends of Gov. Frantz soon realized what they believed was a trap laid to stampede the convention against Frantz. Then delegates ruled the gathering. Delegates hissed and yelled for McGowan to sit down. The speaker attempted to stick it out, but the convention was against it.

Chairman Hamon tried to quiet the convention, but without avail. McGowan's voice was lost in the cheers for Frantz that followed. Then delegates rushed to the platform and threatened the speaker, but he held his ground. Delegates and party leaders urged Hamon to stop McGowan.

At this point Frank Rush, of Blackburn, carried a Pawnee county Frantz banner to the platform and jumped to the top of a press table. The wildly excited delegates sprang to their feet shouting for Frantz and a state ticket. Shouting men in every part of the convention tore loose their county standards and rushed forward. Delegates left their seats and joined in the rush while Hamon gazed upon the tumult in astonishment. Policemen went to the stage to prevent trouble, but their presence was not needed. D. L. Sleeper, of Tulsa, standing on a table, ultimately succeeded in restoring order.

A FIENDISH CRIME.

An 8-Year-Old Girl Is Assaulted, Murdered and Mutilated by Some Person Unknown.

New York. — The "graveyard," as the foreign populated neighborhood on First avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets is known locally, on Thursday gave up a fresh crime, rivaling in atrocity the mysterious butcheries of last week. The latest discovered victim was an 8-year-old girl and like the two young women murdered, she had been shockingly mistreated before death and the body mutilated when life was extinct.

The three murders are strikingly similar. Last Thursday night a woman was mangled in a boarding house; the next morning the body of a woman who had been choked to death was found in an alleyway in East Ninetieth street. Katie Pritschler, daughter of a restaurant waiter, disappeared a week ago yesterday and was killed that night. A ribbon placed about the throat and drawn so tightly that it cut the flesh showed how she died. Her body was found yesterday.

At the coroner's direction, Gaetano Rippolano, whose cobbler shop adjoins the girl's home, was arrested and asked to explain his absence from his shop on last Friday. He established the fact that he had spent the day at Bristol, Conn. The girl is said to have frequented Rippolano's place, and a search of the shop brought to light a man's shirt which bore red stains. The cobbler was arraigned and remanded to the coroner.

WILLIAMS WON EASILY.

Mississippi Democrats Held a State Primary and Gov. Vardaman Was Defeated in the Race for Senator.

Memphis, Tenn. — Dispatches on the Mississippi democratic primary election received by the News-Scholar indicate a victory for John Sharp Williams for United States senator, although Gov. Vardaman made gains in the southern counties.

Scattered returns to the Commercial Appeal from the delta and eastern section of Mississippi show John Sharp Williams leading Vardaman in the senatorial race by a percentage of about two to one. In the contest for governor, Charles Scott and E. S. Noel are leading their four competitors, with the vote very close. The count is progressing slowly.

Four Men Killed.

San Pedro, Cal.—Four men lost their lives Thursday when 400 feet of the trestle leading from the wharf of the Pacific Wharf and Storage Co. collapsed. The dead men were crushed by carloads of rock or drowned in the harbor.

Billik Is Sentenced to Hang. Chicago, Ill.—Herman Billik, recently convicted of the murder of Mary Vzal by poisoning, was on Thursday sentenced to hang on October 11. Before sentence was passed Billik broke down and cried.

NEW INDICTMENTS

ARE RETURNED AGAINST AN ARMENIAN PRIEST AT NEW YORK CITY.

Evidence Accumulates Against the Leader of a Society Accused of Extortion and Murder.

New York. — Four indictments now lie against Father Martoogessian, the Armenian who, it is alleged, sometimes laid aside his priestly robes to practice extortion and blackmail. The priest is just now the central figure in the conspiracy which the district attorney seeks to prove had for its object the robbery of wealthy Armenians and led to the murder of the rug merchant, Tavshanjian, and others who refused to be financially bled.

From the slayer of Tavshanjian, Bedros Hampartzoomian as he is known here, the police hope to secure a confession establishing that the youth unwittingly was the agent of blackmailing Terrorists. A trunk which Hampartzoomian had in Lowell, Mass., has been brought here and its contents may throw light on the investigation.

Of the three additional indictments against Martoogessian brought in by the grand jury Wednesday two charge attempted robbery, as did the original indictment, and one alleges extortion. The latter charges that the priest was responsible for at least one of the blackmailing letters which followed the death of the rug merchant.

The letter was mailed in New York on July 22, the day that Tavshanjian was shot. It was written in the Armenian language, in red ink, and was signed by the symbol of the Terrorists three hands with daggers uplifted, poised above a red heart. The letter was sent to Gulabi Gulbenkian & Co., of this city, and was as follows:

"Death Warrant.—The executives of the Constantinople Armenian revolutionary Terrorists' organization condemn to death Haroutian Gulbenkian, Gulabi Gulbenkian and Patrick Gulbenkian, the three brothers who have deaf ears to all appeals for national freedom. Our executive board, having given its decision to Haroutian and Gulabi Gulbenkian, in America, gives them 24 hours to decide between duty and death.

"Constantinople Armenian revolutionary Terrorists' organization."

Before this letter came Haroutian Gulbenkian, who is the accusing witness against the priest, had received a blackmailing letter demanding $25,000, but had not complied with the demand.

The sense of the indictment is that the priest either sent the quoted letter or caused it to be sent.

Further, it is charged that Martoogessian represented or caused to be represented to Miran G. Karagensian, an Armenian, that he would meet death unless he gave $100,000 to the Armenian revolutionary fund.

A STRIKE OF MINERS PROBABLE.

Fourteen Thousand Employees of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. Are Liable to be Called Out.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The possibility of a strike, participated in by all the miners in the Pittsburgh district, numbering over 14,000 men, became apparent last night when the following statement was issued by Francis Feehan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America:

"The district executive board of the United Mine Workers of Pittsburgh has instructed me to stop all miners working who are employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Co. in event of the company not immediately fully complying with all the provisions of the wage scale agreement."

President Feehan's authorization came after an all day meeting of the executive board. Feehan said the strike had been ordered because the Pittsburgh Coal Co. had persistently violated the agreement with the miners and the union, and that officials of the Miners' union had become tired of the delay in rectifying the wrongs.

The situation looks serious. Should the order to strike be given, 50 mines will be closed immediately.

Ore Handlers' Strike Is Ended.

Duluth, Minn.—Ore dock workers, who have been on a strike for more than two weeks for recognition of the union and an increase in pay, on Wednesday voted to return to work to-day. Neither of the requests of the men was granted by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad and the men will return to work on the same conditions that existed when they struck. All employees will be taken back without prejudice.

Powers' Trial Is Postponed.

Georgetown, Ky. — The fourth trial of Caleb Powers on the charge of complicity in the murder of Senator Goebel was indefinitely postponed Wednesday. Following the action of Judge Robbins in vacating the bench because of charges of bias, attorneys could not agree on a suitable man to try the case and Robbins adjourned court. The trial will not proceed until Gov. Beckham appoints a new judge.

A Doubly Fatal Accident.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys, Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA—
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 25, 1907.

ADDITIONAL RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE REPORT OF COMMUNICABLE DISEASES.

IN ORDER to carry out the provisions of the Act of Assembly of April twenty-seven, one thousand nine hundred and five, entitled, "An Act creating a Department of Health and defining its powers and duties," the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has adopted the following additional Rules and Regulations governing the control of Communicable Diseases.

RESOLVED: That Section 1 of the Rules and Regulations as published in Circular No. 1 which reads as follows:

"All physicians practicing within the limits of the State shall make an immediate report of every case occurring in their practice of the diseases herein specified, if occurring in a city or borough, to the Secretary of the Board of Health of such city or borough, and if occurring within the limits of a township, to the County Medical Inspector of the county in which said township may be located, and also to the Department of Health at Harrisburg."

All physicians practicing within the limits of the State shall make an immediate report of every case occurring in their practice of the diseases herein specified, if occurring in a city or borough, to the Secretary of the Board of Health, Bureau of Health or Sanitary Committee of such city or borough, and if occurring within the limits of a township, to the Health Officer in charge of the township in which said patient may be located.

PROVIDED, that in any city or borough not having a Board of Health or Bureau of Health or Sanitary Committee, the report of such cases occurring within the limits of said city or borough shall be made directly to the Department of Health, and PROVIDED, further, that when a vacancy shall be known to exist in the position of Health Officer in any township, the report of such cases occurring within the limits of such township shall be made directly to the State Department of Health.

RESOLVED: That physicians or others in charge of hospitals situated in cities or boroughs shall report cases of diseases herein specified occurring in cities and boroughs to the respective local Boards of Bureaus of Health or Sanitary Committees of such cities or boroughs, daily, and report all such cases of communicable diseases received from outside of cities or boroughs to the State Department of Health at Harrisburg at the end of each week.

PROVIDED, that in any city or borough not having a Board of Health or Bureau of Health or Sanitary Committee, the report of such cases occurring within the limits of said city or borough shall be made directly to the Department of Health.

RESOLVED: That physicians or others in charge of hospitals situated in the respective townships outside of cities and boroughs shall report cases of the diseases herein specified received from the townships outside of cities and boroughs from which the cases are taken, daily, provided that where such city or borough has no Board of Health or Bureau of Health or Sanitary Committee, the report of such cases shall be made directly to the Department of Health, and shall report all such cases received from the townships outside of cities and boroughs to the State Department of Health at Harrisburg at the end of each week.

RESOLVED: That the names of the diseases hereinafter enumerated occurs in a city or borough during any calendar month a report of this fact shall be made by the Secretary of the Board of Health of the city or borough to the Department of Health at Harrisburg on the report cards supplied for this purpose.

RESOLVED: That the quarantine period for cases of scarlet fever shall be 33 days from the date of onset of the disease, provided that at the end of said period the physician in charge certifies in writing that desquamation has entirely and absolutely ceased.

The diseases referred to above and of which report is required to be made by physicians and health authorities are as follows: Actinomycosis, Anthrax, Bubonic Plague, Epidemic Cerebro Spinal Meningitis (Spotted Fever), Chicken-pox, Cholera, Diphtheria, Scarlet fever, Measles, group, diphtheria group, putrid sore throat, should be reported as diphtheria, Epidemic Dysentery, Erysipelas, German Measles, Glanders, Hydrophobia, Leprosy, Malarial Fever, Measles, Mumps, Pneumonia (true) Perpetual Fever, Relapsing Fever, Small-pox, Scarlet Fever, So-called scarletina and scarlet rash should be reported as scarlet fever, Tetanus, Trachoma, Trichiniasis, Tuberculosis (specify what form), Typhoid Fever, Typhus Fever, Whooping Cough and Yellow Fever.

We regret to learn that Mr. W. E. Devling does not improve very rapidly.

Jos. M. Butler, of Port Allegany, and Chas. L. Butler of Salamanca, N. Y., drove over from Port Monday evening to visit relatives and friends over night. The Press was favored by a call from our old friends and we enjoyed their visit. Both gentlemen have many friends in Cameron county, who are always glad to greet them.

Pathmaster A. E. Cummings went to Emporium Thursday to take a look at the good roads movement in Cameron county.....The Misses Mildred and Olive Owens left Friday last for Emporium, where they will pass two or three weeks the guests of the Misses Rachael Day, Frances Leadbetter and other friends.—Port Allegany Reporter.

The Crowded Jail.

The crowded condition of the county jail is causing the county commissioners considerable annoyance. Seven men and three women are now confined in the jail, all but one prisoner tracing their imprisonment to whiskey. The commissioners are fitting up three rooms on the third floor, thereby relieving the crowded condition.

Leg Amputated.

Lowell Lewis, of Rich Valley, who was taken to Williamsport one day last week, was operated on last Monday, his left leg being amputated above the knee. Young Lewis, who is a son of Verney Lewis, met with an accident last winter, striking the knee cap with a hammer cracking the bone.

Sailed for Germany.

Miss Iva Leet sailed from Baltimore, Md., yesterday on steamer Rheim for Germany. Miss Maginness, of New Castle, Pa., accompanies her. Both ladies will spend one year at Hanover, taking up special course of studies.

A large line of ladies and gents shoes will be sold at a sacrifice to close out the line, not desiring to handle shoes.

On a Long Auto Trip.

Congressman Charles F. Barclay, accompanied by his wife and brother-in-law, R. G. Roberts and wife, of Knoxville, Tenn., tarried in Bellefonte Wednesday night on their return from an automobile tour extending from his home in Sinnamahoning, Cameron county to Atlantic City and return, in their magnificent White steamer. They occupied three weeks in the trip and had a most enjoyable time, having been greatly benefitted in health as their general appearance indicated.—Bellefonte Weekly Gazette.

Delamater Suicides.

Ex-Senator Geo. W. Delamater, and once candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, committed suicide at Pittsburgh yesterday. Poor Delamater! After his defeat he lost all of his property and became discouraged and dishearted. He was more, sinned against than sinned. We knew him intimately and always felt he had been driven to the wall by designing property grafters.

DEATH'S DOINGS

FRANCISCO.

HECTOR H. FRANCISCO, aged 78, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Amos Horning, on West Creek, last Saturday night, after an illness of eighteen months, being a great sufferer most of that time. Mr. Francisco, who was born at Geneva, N. Y., in 1829, came to Pennsylvania years ago and settled at Penfield, where he married, his wife being sister of the late H. W. Bliss. They moved to Emporium in 1892. Deceased was an active and industrious man and in spite of his advanced years was jolly good company and delighted to tell fish yarns, being an expert fisherman. He had many friends in this section who respected him. Deceased was a devout christian and took an active interest in church affairs until his illness compelled his remaining at home. The funeral was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horning, West Creek, last Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. Robertson, of Ridgway, delivered a very able sermon; also was assisted by Revs. Allen and Bennett. Interment was made in West Creek cemetery. Deceased leaves a wife and two married daughters, Mrs. Amos Horning and Mrs. Bert Close.

The Mystery

OF

By
JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1907, by Story-Press Corporation.)
CHAPTER XX.

Innocence Established.

Miss Carney was not at breakfast, nor did she show herself during the day, and my inquiries concerning her elicited the information that she was constantly with Miss Weston, whose condition had become truly alarming.

I wrote to John Carney, as his sister had asked me to do, telling him all that I knew of Miss Weston's condition and of her strange connection with the mystery of Carney-Croft which, for the first time, I related to him in full. Moreover, on the bare chance that he might, through his previous intimacy with Miss Weston, be in possession of knowledge that would give me a clew if not actually explain the present inexplicable occurrences, I asked him to cable me immediately any facts that might help to clear up the situation and put me on the right track in my war against the Bruce woman and her allies.

I did this, hardly thinking that he could be of any material assistance to me in my investigations, but, rather than leave any stone unturned, I related in detail the events of the last few months, not omitting my experience of the morning in the little hill-side graveyard, and I closed by urging him most earnestly to return home by the first steamer.

This letter I posted at once, so that it would catch the next mail boat for England, and, to make sure that it would reach him promptly, I cabled to his bankers that an important letter was on its way and asked them to recall him at once to London if he was at any distant point.

When these matters were attended to I again set to work to organize a plan of campaign against the Bruce gang, and, as a preliminary step, I went into the village and made all the inquiries that I judiciously could concerning her and her character.

To my surprise I found that she was respected and held in the highest esteem by the townspeople, and prominent in all the good work of the parish. Some of the people even said that she gave so much of her meager income to charity that she often suffered herself for the ordinary comforts of life.

As I, Jenks, I could only learn that he was an honest, trustworthy fellow, that he was ardently devoted to the Widow Bruce, but, with it all, I could not find a soul to say a word against the character of either; unless Jenks' keenness in striking a bargain, and the businesslike way in which he brought home the intoxicated frequenters of Hoskins' hotel when they had the money for their fare, and left them to get home as best they could when they had not, could be laid up against him as a crime.

His own occasional potatoes seemed to be entirely overlooked by the townspeople in general, or else wholly unknown to them, and, taking everything into consideration, Jenks seemed to be regarded by the community as a pretty fair sort of a citizen.

With these facts in my mind I tried to reconcile the doings of the early morning, as well as the other happenings of which I was cognizant, with the reputations borne by Jenks and the Bruce woman, and I freely confess that I soon became completely bewildered.

It must be admitted that I had no positive assurance that the little graves up on the hill contained the bodies of infants, except that their general appearance suggested as much, and the fragments of bone that I had seen served as a mute witness of some ghastly crime.

MacArdel, too, had identified the floor of the rags beyond all question of doubt, at least as far as he was concerned, but it still must be remembered that I had not opened the parcel and that I had no way of knowing that it contained anything more than rags, as did the one that we had examined so carefully in the summer.

The more I thought of it the less I was able to make out of it, and, finally, as I had determined to take a walk, and was leaving the house for this purpose, my astonishment was increased by meeting the widow face to face in the hallway as I descended the stairs.

She was dressed neatly in freshly laundered calico, with an immaculate apron of generous proportions, and, in her hand, she held a tray with a cup and some plates on it. We gazed at each other for an instant and then I said, in as unconcerned a tone as I could muster up for the occasion:

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Bruce. Do you remember me? I am Mr. Ware, you know."

"Oh, yes, sir," she replied, bowing pleasantly as she spoke, "I remember you very well indeed, sir."

I smiled at this in spite of myself and stopped her as she would have passed me and gone up the stairs.

"What are you doing here, Mrs. Bruce?" I asked. "I had no idea of meeting you in this way."

"Why you know, sir," she returned, in the same sweetly modulated voice that I had noticed before, "and when the young lady took so bad, sir, they sent for me to take care of her until the 'ospital nurses came from town."

"Who sent for you?" I continued curiously, again impeding her progress up the stairs.

"Miss Carney, of course," she rejoined. "She asked the rector and he recommended me most 'ighly, sir. You know I do most of the nursing in critical cases 'ereabouts, when I can find the time for it, sir."

She caught her breath at this last clause, as if she would have wished it unsaid, and blushed violently as I remarked: "You are very busy most of the time, I presume?"

"Yes, sir, I am, sir," she retorted, defiantly, "and my business is my own, sir, and it'll become outsiders to meddle with it!"

With these remarkable words she swept past me and proceeded to Miss Weston's room with all the importance of an idealized Sairy Gamp from whom the objectionable qualities had been eliminated.

As I watched her ascend the stairs with a little self-reliant poise to her head and a manner of absolute nonchalance, I came to the sudden and positive conclusion that the woman had not a bad trait in her makeup, and that the only way to deal with her was to approach her frankly and in all honesty of purpose. I was convinced, too, that Miss Weston had played no small part in persuading Miss Carney to send for her as a

"What!" she gasped, seizing him by the arm, "did he open the parcel and see what was in it or—take it away with him, Sam?"

"No," said the man, "he didn't do nuthin' to it, 'cept scratch the dirt off the top, an' when he got a whiff of it I guess he wuz all he wanted, for when I seen him he was a-comin' daown th' hill like th' old Nick wuz after him. I surmised what he'd been up to, an' so I went back an' covered it up again."

"Thank God for that," she murmured, "and you did not touch it or open it yourself, did you, Sam?"

"No," he replied. "I jest left it lay, like you've allus told me to do, an' covered it up again 'thaout askin' no questions, one way nor t'other. But I tell ye, Matilda, it's all goin' t'eh be known 'fore long, an' I do wish ye'd tell me naow, 'fore it's too late."

"Yes!" I exclaimed, stepping suddenly before them, "and I wish you'd tell me, too, Mrs. Bruce."

They sprang back in amazement, and for an instant I thought that Jenks was going to strike at me, but I continued earnestly:

"I have come here as your friend to-night to ask and beg of you an explanation of this mystery that is upsetting the whole place. I know, Mrs. Bruce, that you can put everything to rights if you will, and I am prepared to do almost anything that you want me to if you will only make a clean breast of the whole business. I don't believe there's been any very great wrong on your part, Mrs. Bruce, although I must admit that I did think so at one time, and I want to say now that I am sincerely sorry for the manner in which Dr. MacArdel and I treated you both last summer."

They said nothing, and after pausing for a moment, I continued:

"As I say, I come here as a friend to ask you to explain this matter once

"Wall!" Jenks Was

nurse, and I wondered how and through what sort of argument she had been induced to admit to her house a woman whom she had every reason to suspect of bearing her no great amount of good will.

From the housekeeper, who chanced to pass through the hall, I learned that the nurses from town were expected on the evening train, and that Mrs. Bruce would go home as soon as they arrived, and I determined to see her and talk with her that very night at her cottage.

Shortly after dinner, which, like all the other meals of the day, had been conspicuous by Miss Carney's absence, I again started out in the direction of the widow's house, and arrived just in time to find her and Jenks in heated arguments at the gate.

I slackened my pace as I saw them standing in the light of the doorway and, feeling that the circumstances warranted me in playing the part of eavesdropper, I stepped stealthily forward in the shadow of the shrubbery until I was within hearing distance.

"Wall!" Jenks was saying doggedly, "th' hull thing's baout t'eh come aout 'fore long an' ye might's well tell me naow an' hev done wit it!"

"I'll tell you when the time comes, Sam," she said, soothingly, and then she added something in a tone so low that I could not hear.

"Course I'll trust ye, Matilda," said Jenks earnestly and in evident response to her last remark. "Hain't I allus trusted ye from th' start; an' got them pesky bundles for ye, an' buried 'em, too, 'thaout never askin' no questions? But I tell ye, Matilda, th' hull thing's comin' aout 'fore long, an', what's more, that lawyer cuss wuz up on th' hill this mornin' right after we left, an' dug up th' last one we planted."

Saying Doggedly.

and for all, or at least go away and leave us in peace."

"Oh, I can't go away, sir!" exclaimed Mrs. Bruce. "I can't do that, sir, whatever you ask, and I can't tell you anything, either, for the present, sir."

"Oh, nonsense!" I cried impatiently. "You can tell me just as well as not, and I give you my word that you can trust me in every way if you will only take the right view of this thing and side with me in helping to rid Carney-Croft of all further annoyance."

"No," she returned, weeping silently. "I can't tell you anything now, sir, although I say it with no disrespect. As you are a friend of Miss Carney and the other lady, don't ask it of me, I beg."

"The other lady?" I exclaimed in amazement, and with some sudden suspicion in my tone. "Do you mean to say that you don't remember her name when you know her well enough to have written her so many letters that she is perfectly familiar with your hand, and you have even had her here in your house?"

"Written her letters?" cried Mrs. Bruce in a bewildered tone. "Why, sir, I—"

Here she was interrupted by Jenks, who suddenly broke out into guffaws of uncontrollable mirth.

Mrs. Bruce eyed him in a puzzled way for a moment, as if she thought he had lost his mind and then, coming to my side, she drew my head toward her and whispered in my ear:

"In God's name, sir, trust me as you would yourself and ask no questions about the letters or anything else. Do this, for pity's sake, and for the sake of the sweet young lady you love."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

TRELLIS FOR GARDEN CROPS.

Is Easily Constructed and Provides Ample Support for Plants.

After using bean poles, slat frames, and wooden trellises of one kind or another for years; until the supply of poles was exhausted and prices for wooden frames became prohibitive, I began using a combined wire and string trellis, such as is shown by the drawing, says a writer in Farming. This arrangement serves equally as well for either beans tomatoes, peas, cucumbers (under glass), or other climbing plants, being especially desirable for sweet peas, nasturtiums, fancy gourds, etc. It is desirable, too, because all of the material used in its construction, with the exception of the string, may be used year after year.

Those who have never trellised up their tomatoes, either for home use or for a select market supply, do not realize what a very considerable gain in yield and quality is secured by this method. I do not hesitate to say that under ordinary conditions I have been able to more than double the yield, and in some cases triple the marketable product, over the bush method, to say nothing of the increase in quality, which invariably secures for the grower the top of the market, it being possible to secure an earlier and more even ripening and greater uniformity in the size of the fruit; all of which are desirable factors in gardening for profit.

In tying up, many of the bloomless laterals may be cut out, giving the main vine more strength and allowing the sun readier access to the fruit to hasten ripening. Trellised fruit is always bright and clean, and almost exempt from blight and rot. In planting tomatoes for trellising the plants are set at less than half the distance usual when grown in the ordinary way.

This trellis may be made to cover almost any length of row; the longer the "run" the stronger the end posts and the "dead-man" or guy post will need to be. The end posts should be solid and about nine feet long, so they may be set two and a half or three feet in the ground, or even deeper, depending on length of row, with at least six feet above ground—this height applies especially to the tall growing lima and string beans. It is best to sharpen and drive the post, but if set in hole tamp firmly, and plant a dead-man eight or ten feet from post in line of row. This may be a large stone or chunk of wood, buried deep enough to hold the strain. The dead-man and top post are connected by two doubled strands of heavy wire, that may be twisted with a stick in the center to take up any slack remaining after wires are stretched and remedy any sag from strain after vines grow heavy.

Stretch the bottom wires first, ten to 14 inches from the ground, and securely fasten. Next stretch the top wire five and a half to six feet from ground, taking extra care to have it as taut as it can be made. Drive stakes or strips one by two inches firmly in the ground along the line of wire every twenty to thirty feet and staple both top and bottom wires to them. These serve to support the weight of crop and hold the trellis against winds.

Just before the vines are ready for the first tying put on the string, or trellis proper. I prefer some soft string, such as wool twine, which affords the tendrils of the plant a firm hold beside being cheap. The distance that these strings are spaced apart at top and bottom will depend on the crop to be trellised; ten to twelve inches for beans, when plated in drills and 18 to 20 inches for tomatoes, for which a heavier twine should be used. In passing over the wire the twine must be knotted to make it cling to one place, else the first gust of wind will blow it into bunches and so make it worthless. The knot that I use is simple, after one gets the "hang" of the twist. Pass the twine up over the wire, carry the ball over the opposite side and down, then up and over both the wire and the string just laid over, then down and through the loop left large enough for the purpose and draw taut, when you will have a simple crossed knot on top, not under the wire, that will depend for its security on the tautness of the string. The same sort of knot is made at bottom, except that the movement is reversed. Since I have had considerable trouble caused by the slipping of the string as a result of careless workmen, I suggest that enough pains be taken with this part of the work to insure the permanency of the twine when once placed. If you will try one of these easily made trellises you will find that the satisfaction and ease with which you are able to gather the crop will more than pay for the trouble and slight expense in putting it up.

HEADS OF APPLE TREES.

Locality Has Much to Do with Style of Growth.

Whether the heads of apple trees should be compact or sparsely formed depends to some extent on the locality in which the trees are grown. There are lands of sunshine and there are lands of cloudy skies. In the states where much cloudy weather exists during the growing season it is necessary for the trees to catch as much sunshine as possible, for the ripening of the fruit and especially for its coloring. In some of the states it is advisable to prune severely and thin out the branches to make it possible for the sun to get at the fruit. That condition is true of parts of New England and parts of the Pacific states toward the northwest. Even in the eastern part of the United States it pays to keep the heads of apple trees fairly well thinned out.

As we go west toward the Rocky mountains the conditions change in favor of the dense and compact heads. The sun shines eternally during the day time in several of the states west of the Missouri. The heat injures the fruit where it pours upon it unobstructed, and the sunlight is so abundant that it colors up the fruit with little or no trimming of the limbs.

The question of high and low heads is generally settled in favor of low heads, especially in the western states where the wind blows with great force. The low heads protect the fruit from being switched off and where the trees are close together the wind that blows upon an orchard is deflected upward by the thick, low heads, while if the heads are high it passes under the trees and through them to a great extent. This greatly increases the danger of the trees being broken by the wind.

There was a time when the whole sentiment was in favor of high headed trees, says Farmers' Review. The farmers wanted enough room under the trees so they could plow about them and drive about them easily with the farm team and with the farm implements. For several generations, therefore, the farmers planted their trees so they could use the ground for gardening. Those that remember the old New England orchards remember the tall-trunked trees, some of them so long that a good sized ladder was required to reach the first limbs. There was no danger of the horses hitting their heads when they plowed about them.

But few of those orchards are seen now. They passed away with the coming of a more intensive agriculture. Science pronounced them too expensive in the way of time required for harvesting their fruit. The High-Top Sweeting that bore apples at a long distance from the ground no longer has to be climbed and shaken to get the fruit. It is no more, but in its place stands a tree with head close to the ground and with a trunk so short that there is not room enough between it and the ground to do any climbing.

The modern mathematician has figured out that the low-headed tree costs far less to care for and gives as good general results, though its fruit may not be so highly colored. It is easy to trim, for the trimmer can reach about all the limbs from the ground. It is easy to spray, and less spraying material is thrown away than in the case of the taller tree. It costs little to gather its fruit, and the fruit is less bruised when gathered.

GOOD VEGETABLE BOX.

The Sieve Bottom Aids in Getting Rid of Dirt From Roots.

Make an opening in the bottom of a grocery box, writes a subscriber to Farm Journal, and cover it with the stout wire screening used for cellar windows, having about a half-inch mesh. Nail on two handles made from old hoops, that will swing down out of the way at the ends. Use this box when gathering vegetables from their garden and wash these by immersing in a tub of water or by pouring water over them.

Care in Feeding. If the hogs are in a dry pen, start in by feeding them a little green clover at once. As soon as the corn is hip high, give them a little of it to eat. It may not add a single ounce of flesh to their carcasses, but it will accustom them to eating it so they can be fed a great deal of green corn when it becomes large enough. The one great mistake in feeding green corn is that the change from dry feed to it is made too quickly. By starting in gradually now with corn and green clover, this rapid change can be avoided.

Spray. Do not forget to attend religiously to the spraying. The air and soil are filled with all kinds of insects and fruit disease germs and the only way the grower can combat these diseases is by the use of the spray pump.

Is Pe-ru-na Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Pe-ru-na be submitted to any medical expert, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without reserve that each one of them was of undoubted value in chronic catarrhal diseases, and had stood the test of many years' experience in the treatment of such diseases. THERE CAN BE NO DISPUTE ABOUT THIS. PE-ru-na is composed of the most efficacious and universally used herbal remedies for catarrh. Every ingredient of Pe-ru-na has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh.

Pe-ru-na brings to the home the COMBINED KNOWLEDGE OF SEVERAL SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE in the treatment of catarrhal diseases; brings to the home the scientific skill and knowledge of the modern pharmacist; and last but not least, brings to the home the vast and varied experience of Dr. Hartman, in the use of catarrh remedies, and in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousand people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctors over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

BUT THEY ALL FAILED TO BRING ANY RELIEF.

Dr. Hartman's idea is that a catarrh remedy can be made on a large scale, as he is making it; that it can be made honestly, of the purest drugs and of the strictest uniformity. His idea is that this remedy can be supplied directly to the people, and no more be charged for it than is necessary for the handling of it.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, showing that Pe-ru-na invites the full inspection of the critics.

Poor Paint is Expensive

If one is rich enough to repaint his buildings every year for the pleasure of having a change of color scheme, the quality of the paint used may cut little figure. But if it is desirable to cut the painting bills down to the least amount possible per year, it is of the utmost importance that the paint be made of Pure White Lead and the best of Linseed Oil. There are imitations in the form of alleged White Lead, and there are substitutes in the form of ready-prepared paints.

We guarantee our White Lead to be absolutely pure, and the Dutch Boy on the side of every keg is your safeguard. Look for him.

A Cook That Wants No Wages

By Mrs. Richard Wainwright

The Modern Andromeda a Sacrifice to the Cook-Stove—How Two Lazy Women Solved the Cook Problem—The Aladdin Oven a Novel Substitute—No Heat, No Smoke, and No Overseeing—A Boon for Business Woman, Bride and Suburbanite—Every Library Has Book Concerning the Aladdin Oven.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles. (Mrs. Richard Wainwright, wife of Capt. Wainwright, U. S. N., was not at her husband's side at the blowing up of the Maine, nor again in Santiago bay when he astonished the world by his heroism during the destruction of Cervera's ships, but she shows in the following article traits approaching the heroic in striving to help the intelligent woman of the country to lighten their labor.)

What if a delightful old fairy god-mother, like Cinderella's, should walk into the kitchen some evening and find you resting after a hard, long day spent in the unending and pitiless service of that fiery dragon, the cook stove? This monster, like the one in the story of Andromeda, requires a woman to be chained up for its benefits, and sometimes, indeed, it exacts her life unless some gallant, rich Perseus comes as her deliverer.

What if the dear old fairy god-mother should wave her wand and say: "I will loose these chains and let you go once more free and happy; I transform this monster now, on the spot, into a neat little box, with a cook inside, at your service!"

If she should work the transformation, place the kitchen lamp under the box, into which put the food you wish cooked on the dishes in which it will be served, close the box and the kitchen door. Go to see the tennis match, the great game of football or the latest orchid in the flower show. Return when you are ready, and you will find a hot, well-cooked meal in the box, all ready to place on the table.

Can you imagine poor Andromeda saying: "No, old lady, no! I like to be chained here. I love this monster with his dirt and his cruel actions. I will be roasted, burned, broiled and stewed in his service, and when he does not need me I will stand for hours over a sink scrubbing the metal pots he delights in that he may have the vessels sacred to his use, bright and ready when I must again serve him."

How foolish of Andromeda! How incredible, even! Yet this is just what thousands of women are doing, while that very magic box with the cook inside is waiting to be bought and has been written about and much used for certainly 20 years.

The Aladdin oven has been before the public quite that long, and yet its advocates are like missionaries in a far country who have such a precious message to deliver and no one seems to understand the language in which it is spoken. I hope that my experience with this really wonderful invention may be of service to some of the poor slaves of the cook stove and incompetent cooks, and, like a siren whistle, pierce the ears of the deaf and inattentive and cause them to stop and listen.

Jean Paul Richter says: "Only once in her life does a poor woman hold up her head and look at the world as it really is. All her youth her head is bent and her eyes are downcast in study and submission and later her head is bent over her sewing or her endless housework. Only when she loves does she stand upright and is pushed out into the sunshine by loving, willing hands, for her short holiday with her lover, before her head is again bent forever." Now every woman who does her own cooking can hold up her head like a betrothed maiden all the year round.

For several years this Aladdin oven has been used by a family of four with such success, health, pleasure and profit that now so great do its perfections seem to them all that they are ready to swing incense and crown it with flowers every morning as an appropriate expression of their grateful appreciation of its labors in their service. There it stands in the corner always silent, ready and efficient; no heat or smell, needing no over-seeing, and working for them while they play or sleep. I hope an account or an experiment with this delightful little cook may cause some other woman to try it also.

"Hast thou two loaves, sell one and buy jacinths to feed thy soul." Two poor women longed for the unattainable, a house by the sea, their own beach and garden and their very own view, with the shade and rest so much needed in this busy America. This seemed reserved for the rich, for where the beach and garden could be had for a small sum of money no cook would come on account of the loneliness; yet to do the cooking themselves meant labor that would spoil any holiday, for who could enjoy the garden, the view and the beach if she must give up the best part of each day to preparing three meals with the usual cleaning up afterward? However, they decided to try the Atkinson box.

A comfortable cottage was built, three miles from the nearest village, on the seashore, and the two incapable southern women who had never needed to lift a finger in their lives for real housework took possession. In the south, although we complain because it is the fashion to do so, about servants, we very seldom find it necessary to do without them; there is always old Aunt Jane, who was mother's cook, or Malvina, who likes a job occasionally even if she is old, to come and help. So it was felt to be a great experiment to do without even one servant; but the glorious view, the dear little home, the freedom and the solitude, were worth the trial.

The Aladdin oven consists of a box with the shelves inside; under it is placed a common kerosene lamp. The heat is shut between layers of asbestos and a thermometer outside the door indicates the heat inside. The lamp, which holds a gallon of oil, is filled once a day after breakfast, and burns 24 hours, or even longer, if you keep it very low and as the food often cooks 12 hours, very little heat is needed.

Breakfast is put on the stove after supper in the evening and is quite ready by six o'clock the next morning. It is equally good at 8:30 o'clock. Dinner goes in after breakfast, and supper after dinner. It does not matter if you reverse this order and have your dinner later and luncheon instead of dinner, or if you only turn the lamp low enough if you do not eat the dinner put in the stove at nine a. m. till 7:30 p. m. This was often the case with us when we were away on picnics or excursions.

Every evening after supper one lazy woman washed the tea things—a sort of survival of the fittest, for everything not absolutely necessary was soon discarded for the faithful and essential few, and a centerpiece and jars of flowers took the place on the table of the usual ornamental dishes and silver—while the other, in her pretty muslin and ribbons, gayly prepared the simple breakfast, placing it on the shelves, shutting the door, and turning down the lamp for the night. This took about 15 minutes, usually, more or less; then they both departed and joined congenial friends waiting to enjoy the sunset with the cook or perhaps to discuss Maeterlinck's latest play with the waitress.

The next morning at 8:30, after a delicious swim in the sea and a leisurely toilet, the box was opened and a steaming hot, well-cooked breakfast was ready. Again did the lazy one wash the breakfast things; there never are any pots or pans. Meanwhile the pretty cook, in a crisp white dress put in the dinner. This usually consisted of roast beef, peas, rice, roast potatoes, tomatoes, and a sweet pudding, and took about half an hour to prepare. The beef was on its china platter, the vegetables in their own French china dishes and the pudding in its pretty decorated Japanese covered dish. As soon as they were all in, off went these happy women for a long morning filled with sailing, gardening, books and walks—all the joys of an idle summer day. They reached home at one o'clock, hungry and gay, rushed in, opening the box, and took out the very best dinner one would wish to eat—hot, savory and nutritious. The supper was then prepared, and again all the afternoon was before them to enjoy as they wished.

The stove is not perfect by any means, nor will it do everything exactly like an ordinary range; of course not. It has its limitations, as we all have.

The objections usually urged against it is that it will not heat water for household use. As well might you refuse to go on the railroad because it cannot go along on the water or use the telegraph because it cannot carry bundles or a furnace because, although it uses tons of coal, needs an attendant and wastes much heat, it will not do the cooking—which is really very thoughtless and inconsiderate of the furnace. What the Aladdin oven will do is to take the place of a cook, whose principal labor is not so much cooking the food as watching to see that it does not burn from the fierce fire she kindles. However, so serious does this objection about water seem to be that I have not yet induced one person to buy an oven and follow my example. Yet there are many ways of getting all the hot water you want, and when you want it. We have an oil stove and a wash boiler with a spigot in it that gives us an abundance of water.

The food that is roasted, stewed or baked is best, as might be expected from the slow cooking, and is so delicate and excellent in flavor that the ordinary cooking seems coarse and poor after it. If you must have freedom to buy jacinths to delight your soul, perhaps you will not sigh for delicacies that take much labor to prepare and cook. If you really desire them you can always make them over an ordinary oil stove or in a chafing dish, while the Aladdin oven, in a dignified and unobtrusive manner, attends to preparing the real nutritious food for the day. Of course those who can hire a cook need not try one. Why should they, indeed?

A WOMAN'S SUFFERINGS.

A Dreadful Operation Seemed to Be the Only Outcome.

Mrs. Clyde Pixley, Bridge St., Belding, Mich., writes: "I had inflammation of the bladder and the trouble had gone so far in five years that my physicians said nothing but an operation would cure me. Awful bearing down pains, backaches and headaches tortured me, there were spells of dizziness and faintness, the kidney secretions were like blood and passed with intense pain. I had lost 30 pounds when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and was dreadfully nervous. In one week I felt better and to-day I am a well woman and have been for a long time."

Once More "Perpetual Motion." David Unlapan, a full-blooded native of the northern territory, Australia, who combines a genius for mathematics with a passion for music, claims to have invented a machine which will secure perpetual motion. He is now in Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, seeking the means of testing the feasibility of his mechanism. He explains that the forces which he proposes to use are gravitation and momentum and he had to come to Adelaide to seek the assistance of the aboriginals in procuring four beveled wheels, a spindle, a tube and so on. He is confident that when he gets these requisites he can put together a machine which will bring perpetual motion appreciably nearer.

Good for Fishermen's "Bait."

The remarkable heat-insulating effect of a vacuum is strikingly brought out in the claims made for a new sportsman's bottle. The vessel has double walls, being really one bottle within another, with a sealed-up intervening space from which the air has been withdrawn. It is asserted that liquids in this bottle can be kept hot 48 hours in the coldest weather, and that iced beverages will retain their delicious coolness for weeks in the hottest summer.

Blackest of All.

The millionaire from Pittsburg was observed to be loitering outside of the pearly gates.

"Why don't you hurry up and knock?" queried a shade.

"I'm waiting for that other chap to get ahead of me," whispered the Pittsburg millionaire.

"And who is he?"

"Why, a grafter from San Francisco. By the side of him I will seem as innocent as a lamb."

Strange Bequests.

In his will Stephen Swain of the parish of St. Olave, Southwark, England, gave to John Abbot and Mary, his wife, sixpence each, "to buy for each of them a halter, for fear the sheriffs should not be provided."

John Aylett Stow left the sum of five guineas for the purchase of the picture of a viper biting the hand of his rescuer, to be presented to an eminent K. C. as a reminder of "his ingratitude and insolence."

Have Trouble with Your Food?

Try Grape-Nuts

Perfectly Cooked, Ready to Serve, Delicious and Healthful

"The ordinary breakfast cereal cooked a few minutes in a half-hearted way will in time weaken the stomach of anything short of an ox. "Any preparation of wheat or oats put into water that is below the boiling point and cooked as mush is usually served, remains a pasty, indigestible mass. The cells are tough and unopened. In addition, the stomach of a person sensitively constituted refuses to do anything with the pasty mass. It is sent into the second stomach, the Duodenum, where in consequence of the long time of the first process of digestion, is fermented and soured. As an eminent medical man pertinently states, the stomachs of half the people going about the streets are about in the condition of an old vinegar barrel.

"Intestinal dyspepsia is the direct consequence of such feeding." Knowledge of these facts and a wide experience in the preparation and use of cereals brought out the product known as Grape-Nuts, manufactured with special reference to having the nitrogenous and starchy parts of the grains, of which the food is composed, perfectly and scientifically cooked at the factory, ready for immediate use and therefore not subject to the manipulations of any cook, good or bad.

The starch of the grains, changed to grape-sugar, can be seen glistening on the little granules, and gives forth a delicate sweetish taste, very palatable. Children and adults obtain fine results from the use of Grape-Nuts food. It is so perfectly adapted to the wants of the human body and so easily digested that many cases are on record of nursing babies being fed very successfully on it. "There's a Reason."

WHEN THE FISH HURDLE.

Man Wanted to Be Far Away From the Danger Spot.

Of course at this season the usual run of "fish stories" are going the rounds. But one relating to the hurdling prowess of bass and trout, which was told in all earnestness the other night, takes first prize.

"Fish always go up stream in the springtime," said the fisherman, "and scarcely anything will keep the bass and trout from getting near the headwaters. I have known these two species to jump over a dam eight to ten feet high and continue their upstream journey."

"What was that you said?" remarked a friend, who also claims to be somewhat of an angler. The man repeated his assertion that he had seen fish jump over dams eight to ten feet high, and as there was no one present to deny the hurdling abilities of the fish, the only challenge to his remarkable statement was a laugh by all hands.

"Well, I trust I will never be on the top of Niagara falls when one of those hurdling fish you speak of comes flying through the air and hits me in the eye," remarked the friend. That broke up the fish stories for that evening, but the man still insists that a ten-foot dam can be hurdled by either a bass or trout.

FIVE FALL INTO GRAVE.

Remarkable Incident That Disturbed Solemnity of Funeral.

Instead of the accustomed quiet which prevails at the burial of the dead, great excitement and fear attended the burial the other day of Michael Sereno, a prominent merchant of Westport, when by the collapsing of a grave the coffin and several persons attending the services were hurled into a small pit.

The final prayer had been said by the preacher, and the assistant to the undertaker stepped to the foot of the coffin to arrange the rope for letting the coffin into the grave. At that moment one of the pallbearers accidentally kicked out the crosspiece that supported the coffin. The coffin quickly descended into the grave, the body going feet first. The assistant hastened its descent by tumbling on it. Several persons rushed to the edge of the grave, causing the soil to yield, and in a few seconds five persons were lying in the pit half covered with dirt.

They were pulled out, the coffin was dug out and laid flat, and after the grave had been re dug the burial was completed.—N. Y. Press.

"I must give much praise to all the Cuticura Remedies. I used but one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, as that was all that was required to cure my disease. I was very much troubled with eczema of the head, and a friend of mine told me to use the Cuticura Remedies, which I did, and am glad to say that they cured my eczema entirely. My sister was also cured of eczema of the head by using the Cuticura Remedies. Another sister has used Cuticura Resolvent and Pills and thinks they are a splendid tonic. Miss Edith Hammer, R. F. D. "Going Some."

Two of our colored brethren were engaged in heated argument. The "retort courteous," without the qualifying adjective, had been passed and returned.

Suddenly the larger of the two moved up aggressively. "Yuh nygah, yuh! If Ah hit yuh, Ahm agoin' to knock yuh so fah dat der ain't no railroad train kin bring yuh back!"

The other looked at him a moment speculatively. Then: "Niggah yuh-seff yuh brack map o' Africa! If Ah hit yuh, Ahm agoin' to knock yuh so fah dat it'll cost eight dollars to sen' yuh a postal card!"

Whereupon the tall one, realizing that the limit had been reached, passed his "chaw," and peace reigned again.—Judge.

Another Variety.

The farmer met his son at the station.

"Back from college, eh, boy?" he drawled.

"Yes, dad," replied the youth, as he lit another cigarette, "and I tell you I am glad to get back. Been digging up Greek roots all the season."

The old farmer went over to the hardware store and bought a grubbing hoe.

"All right, my boy," he announced as he handed over the hoe, "yeou can change yeour exercise during the summer by digging up dogwood and sassafras roots."

Criticism of Legislators. Lessons in pronunciation are needed by a number of members of the house. The majority of those who tackle the word "victualers" insist on pronouncing it phonetically instead as if spelled "vittlers," and the word municipal is another great stumbling block, members almost invariably putting the accent on the wrong syllable.—Boston Record.

CAMERON.

The Cameron Athletic club was re-organized Saturday evening and a six-round practice bout was in progress, when it was suddenly interrupted by the arrival of the police, and the large crowd which was in the audience suddenly disbanded. The general alarm was sent in, but the fire companies came out in haste, and the police had quite a time quieting the populace. No arrests have been made yet but are expected soon, as several of the interested parties are known.

"Pop" Berfield is still hunting fish bait. He thinks he will take a trip to Lake Erie.

Some dogs ran a small deer into the Fork last week. Several dogs have been chased into the First Fork lately by dogs and some of them don't live to get back to the woods. It seems too bad to hound deer this time of the year.

It seems that both game and fish have a hard chance for their lives in this county. So much poison in the water that the fish cannot live, and dogs to drive the game to death and out of the county.

BLUE BELL.

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during the hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol. For Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms, only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to Indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."
